

Custom-designed forms were required for these piers. The number of sets of forms purchased is a critical decision that balances the cost of the forms against increased productivity and shortened schedule that reduces general condition costs.
Photo courtesy Symons.